

From The French Room

Bonjour à tous!

Year 5 students recently enjoyed 2 French Breakfast lessons whilst their year 6 peers were away at Camp.

We learnt many interesting cultural differences, in particular that "un chocolat chaud" (hot chocolate) is drunk in the morning from a small bowl and that croissants are not necessarily consumed for breakfast, the French eat these flaky temptations sparingly for a treat !

Maddi actually made herself a French Breakfast at home, having heard about the "petit dej" {French Brekky} from class time. Maddi said her Mum was very confused as to why she needed to find a little bowl for her "chocolat chaud"!

I attended the French Teacher's North Metro Network meeting last week and presented to the attendees how I had used our new WACL Digital Resource to present this work. "Le Petit Dejeuner ".

I believe we have given our local French Teachers some ideas with the lovely package that is now available.

Bon Weekend et Bon Appetit,

Mme Wilderspin.
